No. 32 - Man Cheung Po

Site

The site consists of the ravine below Man Cheung Po including the Ng Yuen Garden. The area is about 29.2 hectares.

Date of Designation

5 February 1980

Special Scientific Interest

The ravine is forested and contains rare plants e.g. orchids and Ternstroemia pseudoverticillata.

The Ng Yuen Garden contains a good collection of interesting plants and is in effect a small and interesting botanical garden.

Degree of Hazard

The site is under the risk of hillfire.

Recommended Protection Measures

The site, with the exception of the Ng Yuen Garden, is within the Lantau South Country Park. Priority should be given to the protection of the site within the overall framework of country park services.
